WOOL CARDING
MACHINERY.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the farmers and others in this neighbourhood, that he has lately erected, at a considerable expence, AN ENGINE FOR CARDING OF WOOL, upon Eltonhead's improved plan, and is now ready to receive wool, in its raw state, for breaking and carding; at the following prices:—

When broke for hatters' use, 5 cents per pound.
When made into rolls for spinning, 10 cents.
And when colours are to be mixed, 12 cents.

Previous to the wool being sent to the engine the burs and sticks must be picked out, and the clean wool sent in a cloath or blanket, with one pound of grease to eight pounds of wool.

The carded wool, broke or in rolls, will be carefully packed up in the same cloth in which it is sent; and be found to spin with greater ease, and make better cloth, than any carded by hand.

The machinery has been made by Mr. Eltonhead, one of the first artists in the country—and is in complete operation, at Mr. Bausman's Mill, opposite Pittsburgh, on the Monongahela river.

LOSS OF THE ROSE IN BLOOM.

Since the wreck of the Halsewell Indiaman, on the horrors of which the most pathetic strains of the mourning muse have been lavishly poured forth, and the painter's pencil so frequently employed, nothing of the kind has occurred, at least that we can at present call to recollection, so calculated to wring the heart of humanity and to excite sorrow and sympathy in every bosom, not wholly shut against the tender visitings of our nature, as the ship-wreck of the Rose in Bloom. Convinced that our readers will be anxious to get minute information respecting that disastrous event, we have been at some pains to obtain the particulars, which we found to be simply as follows:

The Rose in Bloom left Charleston on Saturday the 6th of August instant, with the wind at SW. which continued till the Tuesday following, when it changed to the East, occasioning a very high sea, though the wind was by no means great. Thus it continued till Friday, the morning of which was ushered in with every appearance of a heavy gale. At noon on that day, a storm arose of great violence attended with thunder and lightening so fierce and vivid as had rarely been witnessed, never exceeded, even by the oldest inhabitants of South Carolina who were on board. More need not be said of it than that it appalled the hearts of the stout mariners, and made such an impression on their imaginations as to induce them to think that there was a strong sulphurous stench about the vessel. About four o'clock it began to clear away—But in the evening the gale increased to a tempest, accompanied with heavy rain both of which continued with unrelaxed severity and without intermission the whole night. On Saturday the violence of the tempest and the heavy agitation of the sea suggested to the captain the expediency of endeavoring to heave to, which he endeavored to do under a topsail; but this was in less than half an hour torn to shreads by the wind, and by the working of the vessel. A top-sail was then set; but it too was shivered to pieces before midnight. At this time, the captain becoming apprehensive that the wind, being at NE. blowing very violently, and of course the drift of the vessel towards the land being very great, he might get ashore, set a close reefed foresail in hopes of the vessel clawing off. Under this she continued laboring till 20 minutes after 9 on Sunday morning, when she up-set. None of the hatches being battened down, the sea made its way through and rushed by them into the hold, while the cabin was immediately filled with water by the way of the companion. With an extraordinary presence of mind, supplied by the love of life operating upon brave and intriped spirits, some of the passengers in the cabin, rushed up the companion, and some burst their way through the sky-light, and got into sea. Among the the first of those was Miss M'PHERSON, whom Mr. John Rutledge by vigorous efforts got up the companion. The vessel being on her side, those who went out of the sky-light of course got into the sea, they where entangled among the tackle and cordage and in their struggles, clung to various parts of the masts, yards and rigging. The only chance they appeared now to have was, to cut away the masts: but this was found to be impossible, neither axe nor hatchet being to be had. Some persons however, who had run up the side of ship by the shrouds, contrived, with much labour and difficulty having nothing but small pocket knives with which to do it, to cut away the lanyards, on the giving way of which, all the masts broke off short by the board. The ship now began to right gradually, but very slowly. The lading below as well as on the deck being cotton, she was, so far fortunately buoyant, and continued to float with her stern above water; so low however, as to be swept by the waves as they passed along. On this wretched support chance or hope of life, which those passengers who had escaped the sea, now wholly rested. In the gallant efforts of a brave father to save a beloved child, GEN. M'PHERSON, who from the outlet to the last moment., incessantly exclaimed SAVE MY DAUGHTER, had been numbered with the dead. Mr. BOOTH, another of the passengers, had seen his wife and child buried forever in the deep.—They had lain in the weather state-room. On the vessel's oversetting he had burst out the dead light, and this unhappy pair getting upon the wreck with their only son, all clinging in an embrace were swept into the sea where a wave seperated them, never more to embrace. He rose in the mizen top—she was seen for a moment at the peak, and sinking, appeared no more. The child after a few feeble efforts, sunk also. Those who escaped from being carried away by the sea, and from drowning in the cabin, now collected upon the stern, and bound themselves with ropes to the weather railing, nearly naked, utterly destitute of food or drink.

The cold too, was extremely great; and what with it, and what with the hurts and fatigue from the tossing about of the vessel, four of these died in the course of the afternoon. Every thing that could tend to dishearten them, was forbidden to be uttered, and such measures as their desperate means allowed, were taken to preserve them. They were enranged in three tiers, joined close for warmth; these changed place at stated intervals, so that each tier should have a turn of the middle place for shelter from the cold winds which blew upon them. In this perilous and painful state they continued all night. About midnight the wind shifted to N. W. the sea fell considerably, and the weather became moderate, and the night clear. About 3 o'clock in the morning they were cheered by a light, which the marines insisted was a ship's light. It increased in size—it rose fast from the horizon, and they had soon the affliction to perceive that it was the morning star, instead of the light of a ship. At day light on Monday the gale had quite abated, and the heat became almost as painful, as the cold had been before. At this time bags of cotton began to emerge from the hold, and a trunk escaped from the cabin which had a small bag of biscuit in it.—This though reduced to a paste with the water, and salt as brine, they were rejoiced to get, resolving to husband it, by an allowance barely sufficient to keep soul and body together. In litte more than an hour after sunrise, a sail was descried in the S. W. standing, as they thought towards them. She afterwards seemed to change her course; which probably was owing to the weather being calm, and her consequently not answering the helm. Fearing that they should escape the notice of the vessel, and desirous to multiply objects in the sea, in order to increase their chance, two seamen were induced, by a reward promised by Mr. Rutledge, to get upon a mast or spar, and with paddles made from a weather board, to move towards the sail. At 8 o'clock, while the men were with great difficulty, but not more danger than they would be on the wreck, were making their way, they and the wreck was discovered by the sail—which turned out to be the British brig Swift, of St. John's N. B. commanded by an Irishman of the name of PHELAN, whose conduct upon this occasion, ranks him among the noblest instance of that pure benevolence and philanthropy, which do honor to the human race, and so generally distinguish the hearts of that oppressed nation. He immediately bore down to the wreck, put out his jolly-boat to succor the seamen on the spar; and his long-boat to relieve those on the wreck, and got them all in safety on board his vessel, the weather being dead calm. He continued by the wreck till the evening, scuttled the after part of the quarter deck which was above water, and by great exertions in diving caused some few trunks to be saved which helped to clothe the surviving sufferers. Nor was this all. To his immortal honor be it said he would not stop doing good while any good remained to be done. He himself attended the sick, recruited and nourished the exhausted strength of those who were well; gave up his own blankets and clothes and those of his crew to cover the unfortunates he had saved—In a word did every thing in his power to make them comfortable. And, what was more than all, without hesitation consented to go out of his course in order to bring the sufferers to New-York, where he landed them about 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening.

Events of such an afflictiug nature would be intolerably painful, if they were not relieved by something calculated to soothe the mind, and relieve it from the agony of reflecting upon so much horror. In this case the soul sickened with a long detail of miseries and death and anguish, turns from the sufferers, and reposes with delight upon the contemplation of the humane and generous man who relieved them.

Mr. Tait of the house of Tait and Wilson in Charleston, than whom a worthier man lives not, and Mr. Bowering, being in births, to windward when the vessel overset could not get out of the cabin, where they were found dead, very much bruised and lacerated as it is supposed by the rolling of the chests and trunks, and by their fruitless efforts to escape.

The Rose-in-Bloom, at the time of the accident that ended so fatal, had on board 130.000 dollars in specie and bills. Capt. Phelan went on board himself, and fished up several trunks out of the cabin and about 14,000 dollars, but night coming on, the passengers begged him to make the best of his way to New-York, especially as a Philadelphia Pilot Boat had got along side the wreck, and would probably save the rest.

The following is a copy of a letter written yesterday to capt. Phelan:—

NEW-YORK, Aug. 28, 1806.

To Captain Richard Phelan, of the brig Swift.

SIR,—For having, under the blessing of God, rescused us from the wreck of the Rose-in-Bloom on the 23d inst. we offer you our sincere thanks. When we were nearly exhausted by hunger, thirst, fatigue and cold, and clinging to the small part of the wreck, which was then not entirely under water, and without any prospect of possibly escaping from the watry grave into which we were fast descending, the appearance of your vessel resuscitated our drooping spirits, and made us consider you as destined by Heaven for our relief. You altering your course, sending off your boats, and making great and prompt exertions to save us, excite emotions of gratitude in all of us which we will not attempt to describe. We request you would do us the favour, of accepting, as small compensation of your great and benevolent services, of one hundred guineas, and to be assured that we shall rejoice in any occasion which may hereafter occur of being useful to yourself, your mate, Mr. M'Fee, or any of the the crew of the said vessel. We sincercely wish you may have a safe passage to St. Johns—that in your passage through life, you may not meet with any other gales than those of prosperity, and that you would do justice to the sentiments of infinite gratitude with which we are your obliged servants.

To which he returned the following answer.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 28, 1806.

To the Signers of the foregoing.

I except with strong emotions, the testimony you have presented me of the remembrance you preserve of my services in taking you off from the wreck. Not to have done what I did, would have been a cause of the severest and most lasting self-reproach; while the recollection of having been instrumental, under providence, in saving so many valuable lives, will assure you be one of the greatest sources of happiness to me during the remainder of my existence. Accept of my reciprocal good wishes.

RICHARD PHELAN.

LONDON, July 10.

The following intelligence respecting the reported pacific negociation between this country and France, appeared in the Courier on Monday.

The depression of the funds on Saturday had damped the expectations of those who thought peace with France at no great distance. Because no official communication was made after the arrival of Basillico, who was supposed to have brought the ultimatum of the French government, it was immediately believed that the nature of that ultimatum was unfavorable. The fact is rumoured to be quite the contrary.

The negociation is reported to be so far advanced, that most, if not all the obstacles that existed, are said to have been removed; the principal terms to have been arranged; and nothing, it is added, remains to be done but to draw them up in official form. Lord Holland it has been asserted, is on the point of going to Paris; he will proceed thither not to commence a negociation, but to sign the terms agreed upon between Mr. Fox and M. Talleyrand. Affairs having advanced thus far, it may appear strange to our readers, that no official communication has been made, and that any delay should take place in the signing of the preliminaries. The following is rumoured to be the reason. Were the preliminaries signed, they would of course be made public, and would be open to discussion in parliament. They would in all probability give rise to warm and long debates, but Mr. Fox's health is not sufficiently restored to enable him to take part at present; and as he is the minister for foreign affairs, and has been principally concerned in negociating the peace, his presence and active participation in the debates are deemed indispensable.

The negociation therefore, it is added, will not be brought to a formal conclusion, nor the preliminaries be signed till after the prorogation of parliament, which will take place about the 25th inst. By this means, the ministers will gain time till the next session of parliament, and Mr. Fox will complete the re-establishment of his health, and be able to bear the fatigue of debating. It is probable too that parliament may be dissolved soon after peace has been signed.

The following are reported to be some of the principal terms:

Malta to be possessed by this country in full sovereignty.

The Cape to be ceded to Great-Britain.

Hanover to be restored to its lawful sovereign.

The new arrangements made by Bonaparte upon the continent to be acknowledged.

The manufactures and merchandize of this country to pass freely throughout the continent.

No ships of the line to be built on either side without previous notice being given of such intention by the party intending to build to the other party, which then may build an equal number.

These are said to be amongst the principal articles.

For the perfect accuracy of the foregoing intelligence, we do not of course mean to pledge ourselves; but it is in general circulation among those who are supposed to have the best means of information. We give it as we have received it.

BOSTON, September 1.

By the arrival at this place, of the regular trading ships John Adams Capt. Wood, and Sally, Capt. Lewis, we have received our regular files of London papers to the 18th, and Liververpool papers to the 21st July. They are not fraught with that variety of interesting and important matter, which it was believed they would contain; and which the state of affairs at our last dates, warranted the public to expect. On the subject of peace, there is nothing to be found in these papers, beyond the fact of frequent interchange of couriers and messengers between the Cabinets of St. James and St. Cloud, except humour and speculative opinion; which so far as they may be allowed to go, are inauspicious to any immediate reconciliation.

PHILADELPHIA, September 2.

Capt. Heron, of the ship Minerva, from London, was informed by the American consul, that Mr. Pinckney had met with a favorable reception at the court of St. James, and that our differences were likely to be amicably adjusted.—Mercantile Adv.

Letters from Halifax, received at New-York from very respectable gentlemen, state, that capt. Whitby was put under arrest, and sent home as passenger, in the ship Leander, of which he (Capt. W.) formerly had the command. Captain Whitby, we understand, is sent to England, to account to the British government for his conduct on the American station, and the depredations he committed off Sandy Hook.

By the Mail which arrived at Kingston, (Jamaica) with dispatches, adm. Dacres received a letter from adm. Cochrane, informing him of the death of adm. earl St. Vincent. This intelligence had been transmitted from Barbadoes by lord Seaforth, where a running vessel from London had arrived.

The French frigate Veteran under the command of Jerome Bonaparte, has arrived off Annapolis. The remainder of the squadron under Admiral Wolillenaix, consisting of Le Patriot 74, L'Eole 74, Le Foudrayant 74, L'Impeteux 74, and Le Caspart, have put into Hampton Roads.—The Veteran is dismasted, and thrown several of her guns overboard.

BALTIMORE, September 8.

Yesterday anchored in Annapolis Roads, the French imperial and royal majesty's ship Patriot, of 74 guns, commanded by commodore Krhom, member of the legion of honor, &c.

Commodore Krhom arrived here yesterday in a schooner. The French fleet under admiral Jerome Bonaparte experienced a severe gale on the 10th ult. which lasted till the 13th.—The Patriot parted from the rest of the fleet on the 11th, and is very much maimed, having some of her masts, &c. carried away. The report of the capture of part of the homeward bound British Jamaica fleet, is without foundation.—Nor is it known what course the French fleet has taken.

From Leghorn.—Capt. Drew, in the brig Caroline, arrived at Boston in 57 days from Leghorn, informs that no events of importance had taken place in that neighbourhood: that the fortress of Gaeta, under prince Hesse, still held out—and would probably maintain its ground, unless invested by a much larger force, than was at present in that quarter.—Captain Drew adds, that the markets remained the same as they had been for some time previous to his departure.

Capt. Beckius, of the brig Experiment, who arrived yesterday from Havanna, informs, that he took five men from off the wreck of the schr. Comfort, from Norfolk for Charleston, and that 21 souls perished.

TAKE NOTICE!

BY a law passed by the Legislature of this Commonwealth, at their last session on the 17th of March 1806, it is enacted, "That from and after the 4th day of July next, all Township Elections and Meetings of Return Judges of the General Elections, that now are directed by Law to be held on Saturday, shall be holden on the Friday immediately preceding." The Constables, and Return Judges of the General Elections will therefore govern themselves accordingly.

MELANCHOLY.

On Tuesday last, the 9th inst. two boys about 12 years of age, playing in a sand pit in this Borough, the earth from above gave way, and they were immediately smothered. This is the third fatal accident of the kind which has happened here within a few years.

The general of cavalry, Baron de MELAS, who commanded the Austrian army in the battle of Marengo, died lately at Elbe-Teinitz, in Bohemia, at a very advanced age.

Pennsylvania Hospital.—During the year ending 6th June 1806, the expences of this humane establishment amounted to 28,851 dollars 25 cts.—The legacies, donations, &c. received during the above period, was 720 dolls. 67 cts. The capital stock amounted to 73,556 dolls. 10 cts. The medical library contained 1,800 vols. 446 patients were in the hospital, during the year: 36 of whom died. There were 753 out-patients of whom 24 died.

From a Danville, (Ken.) paper.

NOT COMMON.—About a week ago, some of the fanatical denomination of Shakers passed through this place. Governed by the whims of imagination, one of them (a preacher too) supposed, it appears, that the god of order directed him to walk through the streets NAKED! Accordingly at one end of the town he stripped himself entire, and with his clothes over one arm, and his hat in the other hand, he led his horse all the way down Main street, crying as he went along, "Wo, wo, to the inhabitants of this place, for the judgments of god are hovering over them." As soon as he had got to the woods, he again put on his clothes; when he was overtaken and brought back before a magistrate. After some detention, in which he gloried in suffering prosecution like the apostles of old, he was allowed to go his way. In justification of his strange conduct, he cited the example of the prophet Isaiah, (20: 2, 3,) and yet was continually repeating, "old things are passed away; and all things are become new." But no doubt his flexible and fertile imagination can reconcile any contradiction.

Smooth reading.—When preparations became necessary in Holland for the reception of their new King, it was also necessary the grand pensionary (Schimmelpennick) should resign:—On which mynheer Van Leyden Van Westbarendretcht moved, that mynheer Cornelius Vos Van Steenwyk Tot Don Hogenhof should be appointed provisionary pensionary, in the room of mynheer R. J. Schimmelpennick resigned.

The delegates chosen for the purpose of fixing on a Ticket for the ensuing Election, recommended the following to the consideration of their fellow citizens:—

For Congress.—John Wilkins, Jr.

Assembly.—Robert Baldwin, of Allegheny County.
James Carothers, Beaver.
John M'Bride, Butler.

Commissioner.—John Darragh.

Coroner.—William Porter.

If the people of this district are desirous to preserve the Constitution inviolate; if they wish to have their public affairs faithfully and honestly administered, they will support the above ticket at the ensuing election. Experience, however, has clearly shewn, that wishes without exertion, are fallacious. It is the incumbent duty, therefore, of the well disposed citizens to come boldly forward on the second Tuesday in October next, and by their independent suffrage, shew to the world that they are determined to support their rights from the unhallowed grasp of innovaters and reformers.

TO THE ELECTORS CONCERNED.

Fellow Citizens,

ON the second Tuesday of next month you are to perform a portion of those important political duties, which you have reserved for your own immediate agency, and which the constitutions of the union and of the state require you to perform without the intervention of representatives; to select from among yourselves those citizens, who, for a limited period, are to make and execute your laws. A just sense of the high privileges we enjoy and the obligations of duty ought to awaken the serious attention of every elector, and impress upon his mind the propriety and necessity of discharging the right of suffrage; and that without the influence of party prejudices, and with a single eye to the public good.

The fair prospect, that at the ensuing election there will be a more than common degree of dispassionate conduct and unanimity among the well disposed citizens, must be in a high degree gratifying, and promises the most happy result. The objects of the faction, who have been attempting to draw the people after them and to their own ruin, seem now pretty well developed and understood: that it is neither more nor less than to take the power of the government into their own hands, and to secure to themselves all the emolument of office:—that the changes and reforms contemplated are mere pretences and means by which they expect to reach their chief objects; and at any time would be relinquished by their leaders, for any other that would promise more success. The people have had time to mark the degree of danger there would be in trusting such important interests to such ignorant, hot-headed, factious men, even were the proposed changes necessary; and to estimate the extraordinary presumption of those who attempt to seize them.

After much inquiry and investigation by the friends of our constitution and laws, in their individual capacity and by their committees, certain persons esteemed capable, have been selected as candidates for the different offices and recommended to your approbation and support.

For a representative in Congress, has been nominated JOHN WILKINS, Jr. a man possessing in a high degree the necessary qualifications for representing this district. Should he be elected, we would have a representative, whose knowledge of the country, and capacity of judging, would enable him to take a full and clear view of the whole ground of its real and permanent interests; and whom, in the present critical posture of our affairs, no danger could intimidate and no influence corrupt.—Should he be elected, instead of having a representative whose public conduct and character are shaded with doubt and uncertainty, we might expect to have one whose public actions would be clear and discernable, and as open, undisguised and independent as the mind he is known to possess.

As candidates for the Assembly it has been agreed to support ROBERT BALDWIN of Allegheny county, JAMES CAROTHERS of Beaver county, and JOHN M'BRIDE of Butler county. Of these citizens little need be said, being generally known and esteemed as men of worth, firmness and intelligence, and attached to our constitution and laws; and who, we believe, will exert every fair means in their power to preserve them from destruction. Whether the party opposed to us, have really in view "An equal distribution of property," and the discovery has escaped from a few of their undisciplined partizans; or whether the proposal has been secretly circulated to deceive and gain over the poorer classes of citizens, whose necessities, they suppose, might induce them to consent to such a proposal, appears involved in some doubt. But whether "An equal distribution of property," or the other objects, which they openly avow, should be accomplished by them, there is reason to believe the consequences would be similar and equally fatal. That the tenure of property would become insecure; the rights of life, liberty and reputation would become endangered; and a state of things be introduced, which would lead to anarchy with all its hideous attendants and fatal consequences. To avert these dreadful evils, let us elect men whose object it will be to preserve our present institutions; to secure to every man the property he has lawfully acquired, and the other privileges and benefits of the constitution and laws.

The office of a County Commissioner is of that nature and importance, that a person properly qualified should be appointed to it. JOHN DARRAGH has been put in nomination and will be supported for that office. Mr. Darragh's fitness for this appointment on account of his knowledge of business and the common affairs of life, and his fidelity and undoubted honesty, will be universally acknowledged; and his habits of industry and economy will be a sure pledge that no more of his time will be employed at the public expence, than will be absolutely necessary to perform the public business.

For Coroner, WILLIAM PORTER has been agreed upon. This office is generally considered of little importanse; but circumstances may render it of considerable; it is therefore for the interest of the county that it should be filled by a man of respectability capable of discharging both the common duties of the office and those rendered necessary by circumstances. Mr. Porter is recommended to fill this office, than whom few have superior claims or are considered as better qualified to discharge whatever duties may attach to it, with fidelity, diligence and attention.

Lots in the Town of BETHLEHEM

Will be offered for SALE on TUESDAY the 21st day of October next, on the premises.

THIS Town is handsomely situated on the eastern bank of the Tuscarawa river, in Columbiana county, state of Ohio, on fractions No. 5, 6 and 8, in the 9th township, and 9th range, about 12 miles north west of the corner of the old seven ranges, and 9 miles south west of Canton.

A state road is already opened from Steubenville to the said corner of the seven ranges, from whence it will shortly be extended to this town, where it will be intersected by others leading from New-Lisbon, Nimishillen, Oznaburgh and Canton, on a direction to the new purchase lately made by Congress.

A valuable and extensive body of land lies in the neighbourhood which is rapidly settling, the produce of which may be transported from this place by water to the Ohio.

These advantages combining with others which can only be discovered by a geographical knowledge of the country, must inevitably render BETHLEHEM in a very short time a place of considerable importance.

Attention will be given by

ROBERT RICHIE, jun'r. and
ISAAC JENKINSON,
Attorney for Tunis & Annesly.

By yesterday's Mail.

BALTIMORE, September 8.

By the Fair American we have received London Papers to the 23d of July. Their contents are not very important. There is every appearance of a rigid prosecution of the war, and the idea of peace seems have vanished like a golden dream, leaving no traces worth depending on. On this subject private letters from London speak positive as to a continuance of the war—one, of which we were favoured with a perusal by a friend, dated 22d July, says, "You may rely on there being no peace as yet—Those who seemed most sanguine are beginning to acknowledge themselves deceived—while every act of the ministry, and the arrival and departure of every courier to the Continent is watched, and their intentions and business interpreted. But all will not do—the people begin to find themselves imposed on by stock jobbers. A courier arrived yesterday from France, a cabinet council was immediately held, and peace was soon after resounded on 'change, but it is actually understood that Bonaparte has refused to negociate until England acknowledges his continental regulations, and then he will treat with her for peace on terms most suitable to form the happiness of Europe and the prosperity of the French empire."

PHILADELPHIA, September 8.

"GENERAL MIRANDA.—By the arrival of the brig Vigilant, capt. Christie, in 19 days from Kingston, (Jam.) we are furnished with files of Jamaica papers to the 15th of August. On the 12th of August, the schr Stag, Eskell, arrived at Kington, in 4 days from Aruba, bringing intelligence that Gen. Miranda, after all the difficulties he had met with, had at last effected a landing on the maine, and had taken Coro."

"KINGSTON, August 13.—We yesterday mentioned the arrival of the expedition under Gen. Miranda, on the Spanish main, and his subsequent success; we are now, however, enabled to state the particulars somewhat more accurately. While capt. Eskell was taking in his cargo at Cape St. Roman, on the Spanish coast, an overland dispatch was received there, containing accounts of Gen. Miranda having effected a landing at Coro, (which is said to be only 42 hours sail from Aruba) that he had been successful. The gentlemen who furnished the cargo for the Stag informed the capt. of her, that he was obliged to be under arms the next morning at day light, as every person not found in arms against Miranda were considered as his accomplices, and instantly executed. Miranda is aided by a British force, but the exact number not ascertained. He had been joined by a British frigate."

From the Norfolk Ledger, Aug. 29.

Capt. Driver, who arrived here this morning from Algeziras, which place he left 23d July, informs us that it was said that the Spaniards were immediately to enter Portugal; that 13 regiments at Algeziras were in readiness to march for that object, at a moments notice. The Spanlards have commenced the old system of depredation on American commerce.

We have been informed that the negociation for the FLORIDAS, has failed. This information was received from Virginia very lately. It seems dispatches from Mr. Munroe, our minister at the British Court, were conveyed to Monticello by one of Mr. Munroe's family, who lately landed at Boston. This gentleman mentioned the failure on his way to the President's. Wash. Fed.

Valuable Medicines.

HAMILTON'S ELIXIR, a sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, asthmas, soar throats, and approaching consumptions.

To parents who may have their children afflicted with the Hooping Cough, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorder to which children are liable. The Elixir is so perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small, that no difficulty arises in taking it.

From Luther Martin, Esq. Attorney General of the State of Maryland.

GENTLEMEN—I comply with your request in stating my opinion of Hamilton's Elixir. It has been used in my family for two or three years past, with uniform success, whenever colds, coughs, or similar complaints have rendered medicine necessary; I have myself found it an excellent and agreeable remedy for a very painful and troublesome affection of the breast, accompanied with soarness and with obstructed and difficult breathing.

On these accounts I do not hesitate to recommend Hamilton's Elixir, as a valuable medicine, and deserving public attention. LUTHER MARTIN.

The Sovereign Ointment for the ITCH.

Which is warranted an infallible remedy at one application, and may be used with perfect safety by pregnant women, or on infants a week old, not containing a particle of mercury, or any dangerous ingredient whatever, and is not attended by that tormenting smart which attends the application of other medicines.

For preventing and removing blemishes in the face and skin, such as freckles, pimples, pits after small pox, inflamatory redness, scurfe, tetters, ring worms, sunburns, prickley heat, &c. &c.

The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

The excellent preparation comforts and strengthens the gums, preserves the enamel from decay, and cleanses and whitens the teeth, absorbing all that accrimonious slime and foulness, which suffered to accumulate never fails to injure and finally ruin them.

Hahn's Genuine Eye Water.

A sovereign remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of natural weskness or of accident.

Tooth Ache Drops.

The only remedy yet discovered which gives immediate and lasting relief in the most severe instances.

Excellently adopted to carry off superfluous bile, and to prevent its morbid secretions; to restore and amend the appetite, to procure a free perspiration, and thereby prevent colds, which are often attended with fatal consequences, a dose never fails to remove a cold, if taken on its first appearance. They are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at stomach, and severe head ache, and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

Infallible Ague & Fever Drops

For the cure of the Ague, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers.

THOUSANDS can testify of their being cured by these drops, after the bark and every other medicine has proved ineffectual, and no one in a hundred has had occasion to take more than one, and number not half a bottle.
